Omaha Works Celebrates Its 30th Year; Activities Continue Throughout Week

The week has arrived for employees and their families to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Omaha Works. Week-long activities will be occurring through Friday, June 17.

Those who were employed at Western Electric three decades ago recall the many changes that have taken place over the years and those memories will be rekindled when viewing the photo display in the main cafeteria next to the Enhanced Training Opportunities Program (ETOP) room.

Vintage cars produced during this period will be on display in the mall area (weather permitting) on Wednesday and Thursday during open house hours.

Employees will be treated to a lunch on their respective shifts and must bring the ticket provided. Free gifts will also be given away. Live entertainment of dancing and singing will greet the diners on Wednesday (first shift).

Plant tours will be conducted on Wednesday from 6:45 p.m. until 9 p.m. and again on Thursday from 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. to 9 p.m. Employees must accompany friends and family members or guests must have with them the green card pass.

The "What's Its" guesses must be returned by 8 a.m. on Thursday. The person guessing the number of parts in the fish bowl (or closest to it) will be announced about noon on Friday.

The Product Display Center will be open for tours during open house hours as well as other areas of the Works as described in a brochure to be provided at the beginning of the open house.

A video will be shown in the auditorium and the Telephone Pioneers will have a display in the Pioneer lounge.

It will be a week to remember...a week to be proud. Proud of our work, our community, our thirty years of making the best telecommunication products in the world. We are AT&T.

Enjoy!

Take it easy, it's good for you

If someone were to ask you what you would rather be doing right now, would you have an answer? You bet you would. It would take you about a half-a-second to respond. Your mind would immediately conjure up thoughts of floating in a sun-filled pool while sipping an exotic drink, dining in an elegant restaurant, fishing in a mountain stream, or even slouching on the couch in front of the TV.

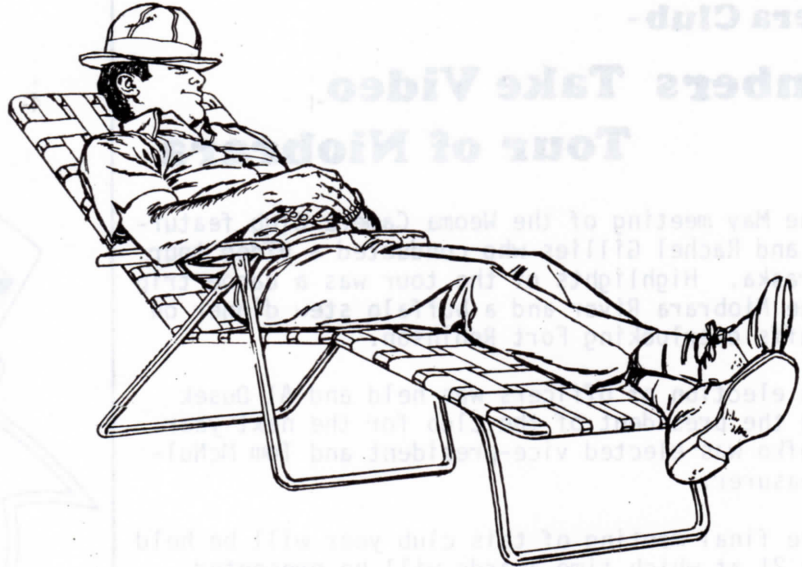

Most of us have no trouble visualizing a serene environment where we can kick off our shoes and just take it easy. Unfortunately, the average American lifestyle does not always accommodate this urge for relaxation.

There are all kinds of reasons for this. Time is one of the biggest. Too often we spend our time like we spend our paychecks. When we get paid we have to pay some bills. We pay the rent, the car payment, the utilities, the credit cards and if there is anything left, we spend it on ourselves.

We go about our lives the same way. We go grocery shopping, do this for our boss, do that for our spouse, help our neighbors and friends, take care of the kids, volunteer for civic groups, and if there is any time left, we do what we want to do. This kind of lifestyle can be very stressful.

We encounter stressful situations all the time, whether it's money or job worries, large or small emergencies, illness of a loved one, or simple daily frustrations.

Our bodies are equipped to protect us from stressful situations we perceive as threatening. This instinctive response is known as "fight or flight". It is an automatic reaction that either prepares us to do battle or run away. When we reach this state, our bodies change. We receive a shot of adrenalin, our heart beat, breathing rate, blood pressure, and blood flow to the muscles quickly increase to help us react.

As an occasional physical condition, "fight or flight" serves us well. The problem occurs when this stress response is called upon too often in situations that need not require an alarmed reaction. The reoccurring physical changes can lead to headaches, diarrhea, fatigue, insomnia, tense muscles and cramps and can also be linked to hypertension, ulcers, back pain, heart disease, arthritis and cancer. This is why we must work more effectively to control the stress in our lives. Learning to relax, and making the time each day to relax, can help.

There are an unlimited number of relaxation techniques that effectively provide a temporary release for stress. You can decide which ones work best for you. Some examples include breathing exercises, back rubs and body massages, meditation, listening to soft music, taking a hot bath or shower, fantasizing and reading. The activities should be calming, rather than arousing. The focus should be on the here-and-now, using your sensory equipment to experience the sounds, tastes, smells, touch, and sights that draw attention away from thoughts and feelings that cause stress.

Once you incorporate relaxation into your daily routine, you will begin to notice and enjoy more of life's little pleasures. Your attitude will be more positive and you will more effectively cope and deal with those things that normally cause you stress. With any luck, perhaps the next time someone asks you what you would rather be doing, you can reply, "I'm already doing it!"
